A "THANK YOU" OWED TO SEVERAL PEOPLE:

This month's newsletter has been generated as a result of at least three people sending in material. To these people, I owe a huge 'Thank you'.

Jerry Remick has provided his yearly update of prices and designs from Canadian and American 'wooden nickel' makers of Christmas and Hanukkah woods. Jerry has provided this material for every year that I have been editor, and it is very much appreciated. Get your orders in as soon as possible thus giving the wood makers lots of time to make and deliver your woods. Thank you, Jerry.

David 'Rusty' Phillips of Port Alberni, British Columbia has responded to my appeal for material and has sent along an article on the "Vic Price Realty" wood (page six). I had the opportunity to meet David at the recent Canadian Numismatic Association convention in Vancouver this past July. David indicated that this wood discovery was the result of research and work on producing a booklet of 'Tokens, Trade Dollars and other Numismatica of the Alberni Valley' Other articles relating to this may appear in the future. Many thanks, David.

You will also notice that our free wood this month, the "McLean Mill National Historic Site" wood, has been provided by the Alberni Valley Coin Club.

Lou Vesh has, once again, provided another of his always interesting "My Wooden Nickel's Worth' articles (page three). Lou is also a member who can always be relied on to offer interesting anecdotes regarding wooden nickels he makes himself or discoveries he makes on his travels. I always look forward to Lou's articles. Thank you, Lou. Please note the update at the bottom of Lou's article.

NEXT NEWSLETTER:

The next 'Timber Talk' will probably be the December 2002 issue, at which time, all "free woods" accumulated for this year will be mailed to those members for whom I hold the woods for once a year delivery.

In the meantime, if you are having a Christmas wood made, please send it along to me, or a picture copy of it, so that I can show it, along with any other details, in a future newsletter.

As well, a reminder, I'm sure is appropriate at this time, to all members to get your annual renewal in to our membership chairman, Al Munro. See the bottom of page two for details.

FOR SALE:

One hundred different Canadian 'wooden nickels', of my choice, for $25.00 Canadian, plus the cost of the postage and handling.

Write to Bob Brown, P.O. Box 124, Highspire, PA, 17034 or call (717) 944-9586 before 9:00 p.m. You can also send me your want list. Woods will be priced at 50 cents and up.

NEW WOOD:

Dan Gosling of Edmonton, Alberta had this wood struck to recognize the wedding of his daughter 'Jennifer Jane'. I became aware of this wood while attending this past summer's Canadian Numismatic Association convention in Vancouver, at which time, Dan indicated to me, that he had no more woods left to give out. The wood is red both sides.

FREE WOOD OF THE MONTH

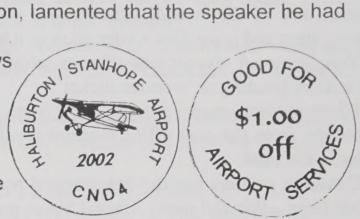

The Alberni Valley Coin Club of British Columbia, has provided this month's free wood. This wood, the 'McLean Mill National Historic Site' was highlighted in considerable detail in the January 2001 issue of 'Timber Talk'.

The wood was produced to recognize the grand opening of the above site on July 1st, 2000. The 'site' side of the wood is blue in colour and the 'Coin Club' side is red in colour. Many thanks to the Alberni Valley Coin Club for providing this wood for all members.

MY WOODEN NICKEL'S WORTH by Low Vesh

The evolution of the Haliburton/Stanhope Airport wooden nickel shown at right began several months ago en route home from a lodge meeting. I was traveling with a neighbor who, in conversation, lamented that the speaker he had lined up for the breakfast on the upcoming Saturday had to cancel. With only three days left, he was desperate for a replacement. "Can't help you there", sez I. But it wasn't that easy. Once I mentioned that my only forte was wooden nickels, he jumped on it. So I wound up giving a 20 minute talk on the topic of wooden money. Each person got a freebie, I got a breakfast, and we all went home happy.

But then, this being a small community, the word soon got around to the attention of the local airport manager. He came knocking at my door, introduced himself, and expressed his enthusiasm at the possibility of a wooden nickel as a promotion for the airport. Well, I did my best to convince him that I was not in the "business" of making woods, and that I made them only for my own trading activities as a hobby. He wouldn't buy it. So I designed the wood as best I could according to his sketches and came up with the above result. The plane is red with blue printing and a gold date, and the other side has black printing on the perimeter, with the "$1.00 off" printed in holographic blue. The code "CND4 is the Department of Transport designation for that particular airport. They plan to give them out to flying customers who buy gas and whatever else they may provide. According to a blurb in the Minden Times Newspaper they are also for sale as souvenirs. At the time of this writing I am unable to learn whether any are available, as the airport manager is away on course. After the "fall colours fly-in" I will make inquiries as to the current status of the woods and report to the Editor for publishing in a later issue of Timber Talk.

UPDATE: Lou has informed me that this wooden nickel has caused quite an unbelievable buzz within the community and around the Haliburton/Stanhope Airport resulting in no more being available to collectors.

A fall colour fly-in was held on Sun. Oct. 6th and the airport manager reported to Lou that the last of the woods was given out at that time. A picture of the wood that appeared in the local 'Minden Times' newspaper, no doubt helped to promote the 'give away' of the wood. Because of the popularity of this year's promotion, Lou will now probably have to make another wood for next year's fall colour fly-in.

YEAR 2002 PERSONALIZED CHRISTMAS AND HANUKKAH WOODEN NICKELS: by Jerry Remick

Presented here are the details on ordering 2002 Christmas and Hanukkah wooden nickels recently supplied to me by four 'wood' printers.

Contact any of the 'wood' printers you wish for their brochure showing designs, colours, shapes, sizes and price data. Order soon as it takes time to print and the mails can be slow.

Your personal reverse side of your wood can include your name, municipality, year 2002, and a short greeting or 'wooden nickel'.

When mailing round woods, make sure they are packaged well with extra padding for protection from the post office machinery otherwise they will arrive broken. Flat woods fare better in the mail.

Canadian printers use the hot-stamped process with bright, metallic colours printed on the woods from a thin foil paper. United States printers use coloured inks to print their woods.

CANADA WIDE WOODS: - General Delivery, Gadshill, ON, Can., N0K 1J0, tel. (519) 271-3352 (Larry Walker) offers three designs for the obverse of their 2 x 3 inch laminated flat woods, consisting of light maple on one side and dark walnut on the other side. Only the maple side is printed by hot stamp using bright foil colours. The issuer chooses one colour for the design and one colour for his name etc.

The three designs are: a large Christmas tree with wrapped gifts around the bottom; four wrapped Christmas gifts; a sign pointing to the North Pole. On the first two designs is printed 'Merry Christmas' while on the third design is printed 'Season's Greetings'.

One hundred flats, exclusive of postage, are $68.00 Can. or $45.00 U.S. A magnet can be attached to the walnut side for an additional 7 cents each. This is a first for this type of wood.

ALBERNI VALLEY, BRITISH COLUMBIA WOODS:

by David (Rusty) Phillips

In 1990, to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Alberni Valley Coin Club, a booklet entitled "Tokens, Trade Dollars and other Numismatica of the Alberni Valley" was produced by a club committee (of which I was a member).

At that time, only two woods were identified and included in the booklet by the Committee. Since then, a number of other local woods have either 'surfaced' or have been produced. One that has surfaced is as follows:

Vic Price Realty of Port Alberni

The owner/proprietor, Mr. Vic Price was contacted by the Club in 1995 and asked for details of the issue, eg; how many made, why they were made, who made them, etc., etc. It should be noted that Vic Price Realty had long since closed out it's business and the owner had moved to another town, some one hundred miles away.

So, to the best of Mr. Price's recollection, the wood was produced in 1965-1966, as a novelty give away. He believes there were 5000 produced, but did not recollect by whom they were made.

When I was viewing the few samples I was able to obtain, I became aware that, in fact, there are two different denominations, eg; a wooden dollar and a wooden nickel.

They both have a common reverse, eg; Port Alberni, Vic Price Realty Ltd.

The obverses are decidedly different, eg; the Dollar, comes with the left-facing Liberty Head, and the nickel comes with a comedy, right-facing Indian Brave Head (see woods pictured here).

The nickel seems to be the rarest of the two types as only one has 'surfaced' to date, and is in the collection of the Alberni Valley Coin Club.
